ADVANCED DISCOVERY ANNOUNCES THE ADDITION OF JEFF JOHNSON AS DIRECTOR OF eFORENSIC SERVICES

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. – (October 12, 2010) – Advanced Discovery announced today the addition of Jeff Johnson as Director of eForensic Services. During his 12-year career, Mr. Johnson has managed cases around the world. His early work as a litigation analyst in product liability matters led him to senior software design and development roles in eDiscovery automation. As a consultant, he has provided counsel with guidance in major product liability, commercial, anti-trust, trademark and intellectual property litigation with a global footprint. As an eForensics expert, Mr. Johnson has managed the collection and analysis of evidence from hundreds of ESI sources, and has consulted industry-leading organizations on the development and application of leading-edge technologies ranging from litigation readiness to early case assessment (ECA) to review. Mr. Johnson provides expert testimony in civil litigation in the areas of collection, analysis and costs. He has worked with attorneys, corporations and private entities in the proper preservation, acquisition, examination, analysis, recovery and presentation of ESI from computers and other digital sources. Mr. Johnson is a Certified Computer Examiner (CCE)®, and member of the International Society of Forensic Computer Examiners (www.isfce.com). Prior to joining Advanced Discovery, Jeff previously served as senior consultant of e-forensics and e-discovery at Alphaligator Group, a Kansas City-based consultancy.

“We are excited for Jeff to join our team,” said Thadd Hale, COO of Advanced Discovery. “We’re very excited about expanding our collections and forensic analysis offerings internally and Jeff is just the man to help us lead that initiative. Jeff brings a tremendous amount of forensic experience to our team and further adds to our ability to provide high-level consulting to firms of all sizes.”
